During the day the general conferred frequently with his staff at Fort Sam Houston, Southern Department headquarters. A close consorship was catablished, however, on proceedings. announcements were made by General Funston himself. From General Funston came this information: That an officer subordinate to him, a brigadier general, would command the charge in the field and would not be hampered by unnecessary instructions. That it would take two or three days

Moving Troops Toward Border.

aquadron was transferred to Fort Sain Houston.

Captain Foulois and Lieutenants J. R. Carberry, T. S. Bowen, I. A. Rader and J. G. Chapman are the present members of the squadrons who made the flight from Fort Sill. Other members are Captain T. T. Dodd and Lieutenants H. A. Darque, W. G. Gorrell, W. G. Kilner and R. H. Willis.

Captain Foulois is one of the army's pioneer airmen. He was with Orville Wright in the first 'cross-country flight of America of any consequence—that from Fort Myer, Virginia, to Alexandria, in 1903. He was an officer of the 17th Infantry when he entered the flying corps.

Squadron Is Undermanned.

While no reports have been received status of Mexican politics and has just of disorders along the border, preparations have been made to quell any that may arise. General Funston has here about fifteen hundred men, comprising south. charge in the field and would not be hampered by unnecessary instructions. That it would take two or three days to organize the force or forces that will go in pursuit of Villa.

That the first aero squadron, stationed at Fort Sam Houston, would be a part of the expeditionary force. That a close watch would be kept at all border points for any symptoms of disorder that will necessitate the movement of troops.

Details Kept Secret.

General Funston, for military reasons, refused to state how large the expeditionary force would be, the time the forward movement would start, whether there would be one or several forces and the point or points at which the Pio Grande would be one or several forces and the point or points at which the Pio Grande would be one or several forces and the point or points at which the Pio Grande would be one or several forces and the point or points at which the forward movement would start, whether there would be one or several forces and the point or points at which the Rio Grande would be crossed when the search began.

It was known yesterday that General Funston was willing to personally lead the force searching for Villa. It was explained here, however, that the War Department thought it best to keep General Funston at Southern Department theadquarters, where he would be in touch with and could direct the entire border situation.

If there should be more than one expeditionary force, the common direction will fall to General Funston.

Another reason assigned was that the entire routine of the Southern Department would be interrupted if the commanding general were in the field. General Funston said, too, that his place probably would have had to be filled by an officer of lesser rank, not in touch with the border situation.

It is expected, however, that General Funston will make frequent visits to the positions occupied by the invading troops.

Moving Troops Toward Border.

The movement of troops from departments other than that commanded by General Funston toward the border already has been begun, it is understood. The amalgamation of scattered fragments of regiments, transportation, the equipment of the commissary and other details, would require, it was estimated by the general, at less two, and probably three, days.

All such troops will be transported directly to the border. The utmost secrecy regarding their exact destination will be maintained.

General Funston has insisted on this precaution to the War Department, in order that Villa may be kept as much in the dark as possible. Army officers at Fort Sam Houston believe the border is infested with Mexicans friendly to Villa, who will do all in their power to been him infermed.

carried with Mexicans friendly to Villa, who will do all in their power to keep him informed.

Estimates of the time required to capture the former Constitutionalist leader are not obtainable, but there was a feeling at Southern Department headquarters that the chase would be to the seizure of Aguinaldo in the pursuit. No American aero squadron ever before has had actual military service. Machines were sent to Vera Cruz and there has been aerial scouting done along the border but this is the first real test of the "fourth arm" of the service.

It is not known when the squadron will leave San Antonio, but it has been announced that it will be ready by tomorrow afternoon. Weather conditions now are perfect for flying, and it is the understand the start of the journey will not be delayed any longer than is necessary.

Captain Benjamin D. Foulots, commanding the ten officers, who comprises the "first" of the squadron and the eighty troopers completing the detachment worked hard to-day preparing for their departure. A big part of the equipment will go forward by train.

All of the officers under Captain Foulois, with the excention of Lieuterant A. R. Christie, will go to the front.
